

How to Stay On The Good Side Of Email Marketing

We can all probably agree that SPAM SUCKS! And the last thing you want is for your brand to be associated with it. Getting labeled a spammer is the ultimate price to pay if you're sending emails that are unwanted and pushy. So let's break those bad email marketing habits that land you in a customer's never-to-be-seen-again spam folder, and start adopting the skills that show how talented your brand really is. It would be a shame to get shunned for life over one tiny email, right?

Practice Permission Based Marketing and Grow Your Database

Ask for permission before adding subscribers to your list Keep the opt-in process simple and easy	Never purchase email lists! Don't pre-check the opt-in box to add subscribers to your list automatically!

2

Always Be Transparent and 'Up Front!'

Use your company name in the From field so you're easily identifiable Write a valid - yet appealing - subject line	Never mislead recipients about who is sending the email! Don't use untrustworthy words in subject lines (ie: Free, "You're A Winner", Credit, "Buy Now!")

Give the Reader What They Want

Aim to provide a mix of entertainment and informative value Segment lists to ensure your campaigns are personalized	Don't focus on selling the reader on a product or service Don't disregard buyer personas by merely sending mass emails to a large list!

Use Graphics Wisely!

Keep designs clean, simple and easy to read Always use graphic designers who are knowledgeable and experienced with email marketing	Avoid using too many graphics Don't forget to display your logo and use fonts, navigations and design aspects that are consistent to your brand's style

Keep the Unsubscribe Process Simple

Implement a single-click unsubscribe process and update your list immediately Incorporate a way for them to opt-in to your list again...just in case they change their mind!	Don't bury the unsubscribe button where it can be easily missed Avoid long and confusing opt-out processes at all costs
